Birthlink's Court Process Service

INFORMATION FROM YOUR COURT PROCESS

You have the right to see the legal documents that were lodged in the Court at the time of adoption. These legal papers are known as the Court Process.

They are held in the Sheriff Court which granted your adoption order, the name of which can be found on your full adoption certificate. After a certain period (this varies from Court to Court), courts send these records to be filed centrally at the National Records of Scotland in Edinburgh.

A letter or phone call to the Sheriff Clerk of the Court will enable you to find out the location of your Court Process papers and you can make arrangements to read them. Birthlink Staff can help you identify their current whereabouts and suggest how you may access the papers.

In the event of your Court Process papers being held in Edinburgh and you are unable to attend in person, you can instruct one of Birthlink's Social Workers to visit the National Records of Scotland on your behalf. We will obtain copies of the information and this will then be sent to you via 'signed for' mail. If you live overseas postage costs will be required to be met by you.

Should you wish us to act on your behalf in this respect we request a payment of £45.00 together with a letter of authority signed by you with your National Records of Scotland Reference Number if available. We also require a copy of your adoption certificate and two items of identification.
